Question/Comment

I'm a concerned citizen and I want to make a change about this town. I'm wondering if it would be plausible to create lights at the crosswalks in town(that aren't located by the stop lights) that let drivers know when pedestrians are waiting to cross. I've heard many stories about drivers almost hitting people because they can't see people behind the parked cars. This is very dangerous and I think having lights that blink when citizens want to cross would make the town safer.
