To our Village Residents,

In 1991, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued the Lead and Copper Rule (LCR) as part of its enforcement of the Safe Water Drinking Act. The regulations were implemented to protect people from exposure to lead through their drinking water. In 2020, the EPA expanded the LCR; requiring municipal water authorities to document service line materials in customer-owned service lines.

Beginning in the month of June, the Village of Skaneateles will continue work on the creation of an inventory of customer waterlines. This will require you to self-report your service line material or have a member of the village staff to enter your home and perform tests on the house's water system to ascertain the material of the service line pipe. These inspections will take place between 9:00 and 4:30 on business days throughout the summer. To see a full breakdown of the ruling and how to schedule an appointment or self-report your material, please visit the Water Department tab under the Village website and select Water Service Line Inventory. If you had your service line inspected last summer, no further action is needed on your end. For any questions, please email intern@villageofskaneateles.com or call 315-730-0015.

We appreciate your anticipated cooperation.

Thomas J. Posen Jr., P.E.

Director of Municipal Operation
